

Odessa State Environmental University, Ukraine

PhD student profile

Anna Bohushenko is currently studying a PhD program at Odessa State Environmental University, Ukraine.

Her research interests are mainly focused on Hydrometeorology, Climatology and Energy Policy.

She was enrolled in INTENSE Doctoral School in 2020 and studied courses developed under the framework of the Erasmus+ project “Integrated Doctoral Program for Environmental Policy, Management and Technology – INTENSE”.

Academic interest:

- Impact of climate change on human health
- Assessment of the vulnerability of Ukrainian cities to heat stress and identification of adaptation measures
- The vulnerability of large cities to climate change according to RCP4.5 та RCP8.5 scenarios with Odessa and Kyiv taken as examples

PhD topic:

Dynamics of extreme temperatures and precipitation in Ukraine in the Context of Modern Climate Change

PhD supervisors:

Sergiy Stepanenko, DSc (Physics and Mathematics), Professor, Inna Khomenko, PhD (Geography), Associate Professor, the Department of Meteorology and Climatology, Odessa State Environmental University